2013 Annual Emerging Professionals Progression Conference

Attention all progressive thinkers: come one, come all to this year’s AEP Progression Conference. Progression will gather together architects, designers, emerging talent, interns and students to inspire new ways of thinking about the future of design and the built environment. Registration coming soon!
Newell Arnerich, AIA, Runs for State Assembly

Can you believe that no architect has ever served in the California Legislature? You can help change that sad fact. Join your colleagues in supporting Newell Arnerich, AIA, in his campaign for the State Assembly. If every Member of the AIACC contributed just $20, that would help Newell run a competitive race. Visit Newell's website to find out more about his campaign and to make a donation.

Sacramento’s Bateson Building and Lincoln Plaza

On a trip to Sacramento in 2012, esteemed British architecture critic and essayist Peter Buchanan visited the Bateson Building, with which he was familiar but had never seen. By happenstance, he also visited the Lincoln Plaza Building, which he immediately identified as a “little-known masterpiece.” Both buildings are seminal works in our midst. Click here to read on.
