Statement of Philosophy

FOCUS

The talented leaders and high performing staff of our AIACC have created an excellent alignment of fiscal and operational forces with a focused, select group of needs and passions we share. With my own passion for action and for member connectivity, I plan to continue this direction, bringing my work on the national Practice and Prosperity Committee into alignment with the great work already brewing at the AIACC in this realm.

I also would like to explore how the use of evidenced based leadership would allow us to leverage our precious time and resources with even greater focus. In the same way evidence based design moves past anecdote toward facts, we can use member data to inform our priorities and move toward consensus, including metrics that allow us to confirm our programs and initiatives are moving us in the intended direction.

While our “new normal” has more uncertainty and variability, it also has the foundation for our opportunities and prosperity. The need for us to focus our creative energy, analytic and planning skills, and collaborative team leadership has never been greater, and I’m thrilled to serve you through the AIACC, helping us all, through focus, be of ever increasing service to society.
