2017-2018 AIACC VP of Communications & Public Affairs
Candidate Philosophy:

My philosophy is informed by my experiences serving the AIA at local and state levels, and by the goals of recent national strategic initiatives. In order to thrive as an organization, we must continue to become more streamlined, more effective at sharing information and ideas, and more effective at elevating our profession’s image in the public eye.

If elected, I’d strive to:

- Utilize the tools we have developed to improve information sharing between members and components
- Foster collaboration between local, state, and national components on issues of importance to our profession and to the general public
- Explore new opportunities to reach broader audiences

At AIASD I’ve been actively involved with programs that increase public awareness on the importance of architecture and design.

Our profession matters. Ultimately, however, our success is tied to our ability communicate our importance as an issues-based organization. Our communities and our state face many significant challenges, and we are doing great work to address them. The key is to let everyone know about it.

I’d be honored to receive your support and look forward to working with you all.
