AIA Strategic Council Representative

“The AIA National Strategic Council is charged with investigating emerging forces, influencing the profession, and enhancing architect’s leadership roles in making sustainable cities and as a bi-cameral complement and advisor to the AIA National Board of Directors.”

Over the last two years as President and President-Elect, I’ve worked closely with the three individual California Strategic Council Representatives, finding key ways to intermingle the efforts and discussions taking place within California and at the National arena. California has been a major thought leader at AIA National, and I aim to continue this endeavor with my tenure as the Strategic Council Representative.

As seen during our July board meeting, through our Hackathon, it’s important for our organization to take a critical look at where we can be influencing change at a greater scale. The Hackathon not only afforded us the opportunity to hear from all of our board members regarding the issues that are relevant and important to them, but have allowed us to prioritize those goals in alignment with our strategic plan. It would be an honor to represent the values, goals and perspectives of our California members at the National Strategic Council.
